CBF Missions Moment

In Spain, CBF field personnel Michelle & Matt Norman have learned to navigate the complex political and theological climates of a region clamoring for independence. They work to balance mixed traditions from the immigrant churches of Latin America, Asia, and Africa. It can be a challenge because you have a clash of cultures. Matt said, "not only do you have the Catalan culture and the Spanish culture, you have immigrant cultures." Although the Normans initially thought they would be working with refugees, they found that work has become focused on helping Protestant Spanish and immigrant churches engage the the local culture. Matt says, "We're trying to allow people to articulate their faith in ways the culture can hear."
